Subject : RE: Halloween Party

Hi, Brandon.

It was a pleasure meeting you too! Sorry it took me all week to get back to you, but it's been wild around here with the Sox, the election, and all the lovely budgeting stuff we've been doing at work.

Anyway, I'm really impressed with the work you're doing in NYC and I think that Boston could definitely benefit from something similar up here. The problem is, as we discussed at [REDACTED], I would have to leave my job to pursue this and I don't think that's a real possibility at the moment considering the nature of the job market at present. Instead, I would love to help you or someone else get this thing started up here in any way I can.

I have a few people in mind, in particular, but I also have a few questions! How exactly did you go about getting yours started in NYC? How did you spread the word about the party, while keeping it quiet enough that people can use the party's name online without fear of being 'outed'? How/when did you get the survey involved?

I hope you have a great Halloween weekend!!
 Cheers

Hello Michael;

It was a pleasure meeting, and chatting with you at [REDACTED] I am confident your stay in NYC was a pleasurable one. How can we work together on your project?
 Brandon

 I'm excited to get to meet you tonight. I was hoping to have the opportunity to chat with you a while about your parties and other public health interventions- should I get [REDACTED] is there a good time to have such a chat? > >Cheers
